On 31 July 2026 the European Data Protection Board sent a letter to the European Commission requesting it to "closely assess" how the Trump v. Slaughter ruling might affect the FTC's ability to uphold its Data Privacy Framework commitments.

EDPB Chair Anu Talus: "The existence and effective functioning of one or more independent supervisory authorities in the third country ... is one of the key elements to be taken into account when assessing the adequacy of the level of protection in a third country."

noyb Honorary Chair Max Schrems said the framework "is done", citing a constitutional-level conflict with the Charter of Fundamental Rights, and said noyb is "actively working on a lawsuit to put the matter back before the" Court of Justice of the European Union.

The article notes the Commission had not responded to the EDPB's request as at publication, and that standard contractual clauses and binding corporate rules remain available as alternative transfer mechanisms.
